USG informally backs tuition increase

By Marc Chase
Senior Reporter

Senator says president jumped gun on position

Leaders of the Undergraduate Student Government announced Wednesday they do not oppose the proposal by SIUC Chancellor James Brown to raise SIUC tuition by 3.5 percent.

Brown said the reason for the tuition increase proposal, which he will deliver Sept. 8 to the SIUC Board of Trustees, is to match the inflation rate that is rising nationwide.

"The money (for tuition) we were asking for last year won't buy as much this year," Brown said. "We are following IBHE (Illinois Board of Higher Education) policy to increase the tuition rate based on inflation."

Edwin Sawyer, USG president, said he and other USG officials do not plan to oppose the proposed increase.

"In general we (USG officials) feel it is an acceptable increase because it is inflationary," Sawyer said. "I don't think we will oppose it unless there are strong reservations."

David Erikson, USG senator from Thompson Point, said USG should not be deciding on a position concerning the proposed increase yet.

"I disagree with what he (Sawyer) said because it is too early to say one way or the other how USG feels as a whole," Erikson said. "We shouldn't just say we are not going to oppose it. We should first ask the students' opinion."

The USG senate has not drafted a resolution supporting or opposing the proposed increase.

Bill Hall, Graduate and Professional Student Council representative for community development, said Brown's proposal is being made too early because the University does not know if an increase will be necessary.

"The proposal is very premature," Hall said. "We need to know what the (Illinois) Board of Higher Education will recommend the legislature to give to SIUC for next fall before we can decide if a tuition increase is going to be needed."

Hall said since the Board will not recommend state funding for SIUC until December, the proposal should be delayed until after the recommendations are made.

A tuition increase should be unnecessary, even without knowing how much the state will allocate the University, because SIUC has already cut programs to lessen the necessity for tuition and tax

Carnival of Craziiness kicks off SPC events

Celebration's 15th year features mix of activities

By Charlotte Rivers
Campus Life Editor

Behind the glass doors of the Student Center the balloons were inflated, the game prizes were set up in neat lines and the pizzas and burgers were sizzling. Outside, students milled about, $2 in hand, waiting for the Carnival of Craziiness to come to life last night.

Although it has been known by different names in the past, the carnival has been around for at least 15 years, according to a student programming adviser.

"E Night and Center Fest are the other names that I know of," Don Castle said. "However, the Student Center Open House has essentially existed in some form for 15 years. For the last five, it's been the Carnival of Craziiness."

Castle said the event is a way to encourage use of the Student Center.

"The purpose of the carnival is mainly to have fun," he said. "But also to promote SPC (Student Programming Council) and the Student Center."

About 500 people get involved in the planning of and working at the carnival, he said.

"We have as many as 200 at SPC and the Student Center employs about 300," he said. "More than 300 were on our list of those to work."

Four hairdressers from Regis Hairstylists in University Mall were present to administer $3 cuts. Regis manager Jane Coulter said last year was the first year her salon participated in the carnival.

"We did it again this year because it's fun; we had a good time," she said. "We mostly do quick

Watson says students needed to boost morale

By Bill Kugelberg
Associate Student Editor

As the countdown toward SIUC's opening football game draws to a close, the excitement surrounding the upcoming season has started to descend upon the University and the Southern Illinois region.

The addition of new head coach Shawn Watson and his optimistic outlook toward building the foundation needed for a successful football program has many involved with the program betting students will react positively by attending the games.

"Barring any bad weather, we are looking for a great turnout from the students and the surrounding areas Saturday," Charlotte West, SIUC's assistant athletic director said.

"Coach (Shawn) Watson has been a great ambassador for the program. Everyone seems real excited and it seems like there is a new enthusiasm as well."

A 2-9 record under former head coach Bob Smith last season may have contributed to the low attendance at the final home games of last season, but Watson said he needs the students in order for the program to be successful.

"This is not a one-man job. I am in the position of leadership of supplying creativity and direction for the program, yet I can't get it done without the students; I need the students," he said.

Many students have shown their support for Watson's program by purchasing season tickets and Saluki sports passes. A group of international students even bought the new head coach a fax machine.

Tom Davis, publicity promotion specialist for SIUC athletics, said he notices a difference in how the excitement surrounding the beginning of this football season compares to last season.

"Shawn is more of a rah-rah

CLINTON DEMANDS CHINESE TRADE REFORMS — WASHINGTON — China was a land of opportunity this week for several U.S. corporate executives who signed contracts with Chinese officials worth nearly $5 billion. But doing business in China has its problems as well, including widespread complaints from U.S. companies of discriminatory treatment. The Clinton administration is insisting that China reform its foreign trade and investment policies before it can be admitted to the new World Trade Organization, which is to take over management of global commerce next year.

ISRAEL AND MOROCCO ESTABLISH LIAISONS — JERUSALEM — Israel and Morocco established low-level diplomatic relations Thursday, making the North African country the second Arab nation after Egypt to have formal ties with the Jewish state. After 20 years of contacts that began clandestinely and grew to open visits to Morocco by Israeli ministers, the two countries agreed to establish liaison offices and Israeli officials predicted a rapid broadening of ties, including expanded trade, direct airline service and increased tourism.

BRITAIN AND IRA INCH TOWARD PEACE TALKS — BELFAST, Northern Ireland — Britain and the Irish Republican Army inched closer toward agreement on conditions for direct peace talks Thursday, but British officials said they were yet to be fully convinced that the IRA's cease-fire declaration Wednesday was a permanent pledge to end violence. The London government regards such a firm commitment to a permanent cease-fire as essential before a schedule for direct negotiations to end Northern Ireland's 25-year civil conflict can be set.

REPORT SAYS CLINTON UNFAIRLY CRITICIZED — WASHINGTON — A recent report from the Center for Media and Public Affairs found that from Inauguration Day through late June 1994, Clinton has been the target of more than 2,400 negative comments on the network evening newscasts, an average of nearly five per night. A handful of journalists and academics have contended in recent weeks that Clinton is a better president than he has been portrayed by the media, which partly explains his low approval rating — 39 percent, according to the last USA Today-CNN poll.

POSTAL POLICY UPSETS BUSINESS LEADERS — WASHINGTON — In the midst of the Postal Service's current delivery crisis, agency officials said that after Oct. 2, businesses afraid of late delivery would have to pay for the privilege of picking up their mail themselves instead of having it brought to them. Postal officials say it costs extra money to pull mail from a letter carrier's route and hand it to someone in a post office. After protests from corporate leaders, the agency agreed to keep the service free until at least Sept. 15, 1995, so officials can investigate the issue further.

Candidates speak out against violent crime

By Kellie Huttes
Senior Reporter

Jim Ryan, Republican candidate for attorney general, said he would lead the most aggressive assault on crime Illinois has ever seen during his 26th End the Violence Summit to public officials and community members at the Carbondale Pavilion Thursday.

Ryan, state's attorney for DuPage County for the past 10 years, spoke to members of Jackson, Perry, Union and Williamson counties about their views on juvenile crime, domestic violence and law enforcement.

Marco Morales, deputy press secretary and spokesperson for Al Hofeld, who is running against Ryan, said Hofeld's concentration tends to be toward the search and prosecution of dead beat parents.

"The attorney general spends only 20 percent of his or her time dealing with crime," Morales said. "Hofeld has a variety of issues he will tackle — like protecting the environment and medical fraud."

said narcotics, especially crack-cocaine, are the main contributor to violent and juvenile crime in the area.

To prevent the annual crime increase he said early intervention education is as important as enforcement in getting the message to children.

Melvin Turley, a member of the district 95 board of education, said DARE (Drug Awareness Resistance Education) is the only method of narcotics education in school systems, however more money needs to be spent on education law enforcement needs to be addressed.

"With money for enforcement we can cut crack-cocaine 70 percent," Turley said. "The thrust should be on incarceration of criminals, if we spend one-tenth the amount of enforcement money on prisons, we can cut down on crime."

David Stanton, Perry County state's attorney, said with the overall increase in crime, juvenile crime continues to increase from 12 juvenile crimes in 1992 to almost 100 this year.

Stanton said there are several things that contribute to juvenile crime such as the breakdown of families, easy accessibility to alcohol and the lack of activities for teens.

Morales said Hofeld believes in the rehabilitation of youth, rather than putting juveniles in prison at a young age.

"If you put kids in jail it not only will be detrimental to them, it will be detrimental to society," he said. "Hofeld thinks rehabilitation and detention centers better serve juvenile offenders."

Tim Capps, candidate for Jackson County state's attorney and SIUC alumnus, said Jackson county's crime rate is characteristic of an urban area, rather than the rural area it is classified as.

"Jackson County is unique in it's violent crime rate," he said. "It's out of proportion because of it's connections with East St. Louis and Chicago."

Capps said the juvenile rate increases because kids get sucked into a culture of "gang wanna-be's" and get caught up in city images.

Free-for-all: Local merchants offer discount card

By Dean Weaver
Senior Reporter

Everybody wants something for nothing and thanks to local Carbondale businesses SIUC students now have that chance.

Undergraduate Student Government began handing out red, white and blue Campus Club cards Thursday which provide students with year-long discounts at 14 local businesses.

The cards offer free pitchers of soda at local pizza places, discounts on automotive services, and money off tanning packages.

Matt Parsons, chief of staff for USG, said senators will be passing out the first shipment of cards to students.

"Our goal is to get these cards in the hands of everybody," Parsons said. "Anyone who wants one can have one."

He said if students want to get a card they can go to the student government office located on the third floor of the Student Center and pick one up.

Student Achievements and Collegiate Services in Chicago is the company that sold the idea of the card to local businesses and the student government.

Patrick Moriarty, owner of the Chicago business, said the businesses pay for the cards and the student government at SIUC only contribute their time to distribute the cards.

Moriarty said he has provided 23 other colleges in Illinois with similar discount cards and he would like to continue to provide the service to Carbondale students.

Steve Rennison, owner of The Auto Shop, 318 N. Illinois Ave., said the reason he advertised on the card was because he thought it would attract customers and expose them to his repair shop.

John Miller, manager of El Grecco, 516 S. Illinois Ave., said he thinks the card is better than a coupon book because it lasts an entire year and is easier to use.

Parsons said he hopes this card will get the students more involved with the community and give them a stronger voice in community issues.

Vickey McVey, manager of Valvoline Instant Oil Change, 1190 E. Main, said the card is a great way to advertise.

"I have already seen 20 people use these cards since Monday," she said. "Students can use these cards at any Valvoline Instant Oil Change location."

Moriarty said that he has sent SIUC 12,000 cards and will send further shipments as they are needed.

Radar helps create safer campus for all

ITS 7:52 A.M. AND THE CLOCK IS TICKING before that 8 a.m. class starts. All you have to do is get on campus and park before the rest of your day can begin, so you start speeding just to make it up the street, around the curve and into the parking lot.

This morning is different. You developed a lead foot and did not read the 25 miles per hour speed limit sign posted. Besides that you almost caused an accident. Pedestrians and bicyclists fear drivers like you. A lot of students face this rush every weekday morning. You get busted for speeding on campus and you deserve it.

The campus community, especially members with small children, have voiced their concerns to University administration about the excessive number of speeding drivers. Motorists not yielding to pedestrians and going over the speed limit were some of those concerns expressed. The community is correct for doing so. The high amount of traffic on campus, even without the speeding, is dangerous enough make any one stay home.

To combat this problem of racing to class too fast, the SIUC Police Department has two radar units in place as of Thursday. These two units were installed to prevent traffic accidents on campus.

The issue of speeding drivers on campus came up last year when the new jay-walking regulation, in which a person could be fined for not using the crosswalks for crossing the street, was passed. According to Sam Jordan, director of security at SIUC, one of reasons why the jay-walking regulation passed was because of speeding drivers. In the past, SIUC police were not able to detect speeding drivers because of the lack of equipment. Instead, SIUC police officers just paced a suspected speeder for a certain distance at a certain speed.

If caught speeding, drivers could receive a state ticket, which is $75, or a campus citation, $15 and does not show up on a driver's record. Depending on where the driver was speeding when pulled over is one of the major determining factors on which kind of ticket the driver will get. If a driver, who happens to be an SIUC student, is on campus speeding and gets pulled over, that driver is more likely to get a campus citation than a state ticket.

These two units were installed not for just catching the speeding student, but to remind drivers this campus is more a pedestrian-oriented than it is a raceway. So, the next time you hurry and exceed the speed limit trying to get to class or go home, remember that an SIUC police car with a radar unit is just around the corner. Taking the time to slow down and allow fellow students make their (right) way through the crosswalks is not just safe, but also smart.

Football more than just a game

As the kickoff to the Saluki football season starts, I can't help but feel the excitement in the air. Of course I, along with the rest of the world, hope for a winning season for the Dawgs under the new enthusiastic direction of coach Shawn Watson, but football season means a little more than men playing a game to me.

When I was in grade school, I lived for Friday nights in the fall. My parents would take me to see the area high school football games where I always would get a shaker to wave and pretend to be a cheerleader (I usually was hoarse by halftime from yelling so loud). The hot chocolate I would drink and the blanket I would snuggle under when the cold wind began to whip across the field are present in my mind every time I see a stadium.

I don't know why I like football, I know nothing about the game other than the Shakers throw Subway sandwiches to the crowd every time the Dawgs score a touchdown. Maybe it's the football players — every girl loves a man in uniform, the saying goes.

Maybe it's the oversized Saluki sweatshirts I get to drag from the depths of my closet every year to show my school spirit on game day. It could be the walk to the stadium, the soon-to-come crisp air blowing through my hair and fallen leaves crunching under my feet before entering McAndrew Stadium always are a sure sign fall has arrived.

Kellie Huttes

There usually is a game on or around my birthday, the game is a party in itself (especially the tailgate).

Possibly the memories of raking leaves with my dad and drinking apple cider by the fire while watching televised games make me a tad sentimental.

But I think I like football the most because it's an experience — it is a time where family and friends come together.

Football is an American tradition — what else would in-laws and cousins have to do on Thanksgiving Day other than play the game and roll around in the yard before actually watching it on TV?

It is a sport that brings towns and universities to agreement on a common idea — the home team should win. The amount of support a team has contributes a great deal to their morale.

Saluki football is an institution and should be actively supported by students, faculty, alumni and the community.

The team, cheerleaders, band and Shakers work hard all year to represent us, the least we can do is cheer them on during game day. Chanting with the cheerleaders, sporting a crimson and white shirt or hair ribbon or tailgating with friends is a way to show school spirit.

Football games always have been memory makers for me. I still yell and shake my shaker when we score and chant with the cheerleaders, drink hot chocolate and bundle under blankets on cold game days.

From the high school homecomings to the parties with friends, the anticipation of that interception or field goal — football seems to be a part of school, a part of fall, a part of life.

— Kellie Huttes is the assistant campus life editor at the Daily Egyptian guy," Davis said. "He creates excitement on his own. The anticipation is much greater than the last couple of years. There is a great deal more anticipation than anytime since I've been here."

Davis also said he thinks a bigger crowd gives the team a little more incentive to play the game.

"Shawn said when he was a player here he would look out of the tunnel and see how many people were in the stands — it got the team more excited," Davis said. "Some of the players on the team remember back in '91 when 16,500 people were here for a game."

Despite noticing no real change in season ticket sales from last year, West said she thinks fans will come in droves to the games this season.

"It is hard for us to determine how many students will come to the opening game on Saturday because walk-up sales constitute the biggest percentage of people who come to the games," she said. "But if I were a betting woman, I would say we are going to have more walk up sales than last year."

The Saluki athletic department has been busy trying to generate interest in the football team by running ads, sending Watson on a poster-tour of the region and organizing Football Fest '94.

The fest will take place after the opening game on Saturday and will allow fans to participate in interactive football-related contests, win prizes and meet SIUC players.

The cost of the fest is $2. The Salukis will host four other football games this year, including contests against Western Illinois (Family Weekend), Indiana State, Southeast Missouri (Homecoming), and Northern Iowa.

Saturday's contest at McAndrew Stadium is against Tennessee-Martin and will begin at 1:30 p.m.

literacy in the community. The exhibit is geared for children, but adults will like it, too."

The carnival was more than just educational exhibits; it was cheap, convenient entertainment.

Lucy Steele, a senior in music education from Livermore, Calif., visited the face painting booth in the Craft Shop in the lower level and decided on a tiny-blue whale painted on her cheek.

"I've only been here 10 minutes and I've played five games," she said. "I'm supposed to be studying, but this is more fun. We're having a great time for $2."

John Dahlin, a senior in physiology from Park Forest, said he has attended the carnival every year he has been an SIUC student.

"It's traditional, like Spring Fest," he said. "It's a nice alternative to the usual Thursday night entertainment. There's a lot of neat stuff."

Diet craze only slims pocketbooks

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON—We guzzle $15 billion worth of diet soft drinks a year. We gobble up $2.4 billion worth of Healthy Choice, Weight Watchers, Lean Cuisine and the like and choke down another $1.7 billion worth of Ultra Slim-Fast, appetite suppressants and pseudo-foods. Our role models are Tommy Lasorda, Jenny Craig, Richard Simmons, Susan Powter and, on-again, off-again, Oprah.

But still we get fat.

The average American put on eight pounds between 1980 and 1991, and now one in three adults in the United States is certifiably overweight, the National Center for Health Statistics reported recently.

That's 2 billion new pounds of avoidable avoidpoups among us, an extra 1 million tons of tummy that took root during a decade when the diet business was growing even faster than our waistlines.

Consumption of all those canned and powdered things people eat in lieu of real foods is up 70 percent since 1990 and is projected to hit $1.6 billion next year, reports the research firm. Packaged Facts Inc. of New York.

Overall growth has slowed somewhat in the $32 billion-a-year diet industry as measured by Marketdata Enterprises Inc. of New York. That market includes everything from diet sodas and "light" potato chips to prescription diet drugs and weight loss programs. John LaRosa, president of Marketdata, said the fat-fighting industry was putting on 15 percent a year during the 1980s, and even now its growth is keeping pace with the growth in population and waistlines.

Other research by the Calorie Control Council, a trade association for diet food makers, shows that 90 percent of U.S. adults now routinely consume foods labeled "diet," "light," "reduced calorie," "low fat" or some such promise. That's up from 81 percent last year and 76 percent in 1992, thanks to a steady proliferation of products created to satisfy the demand for foods with a caloric advantage.

Logically, those industry growth lines ought to be moving in opposite directions from the statistical tape measures of our waistlines. If we're eating more low-cal stuff, we shouldn't be getting fatter.

Pair of rabid bats raise area concerns

By Chad Anderson
Staff Reporter

Jackson County Animal Control officials are waiting for the rabies test results of a dead bat found in Carbondale on Thursday.

Officials are testing the bat for rabies because a pair of rabid bats were discovered in the area within the last week.

Lloyd Nelson, county animal control director, said finding a dead bat is not uncommon and discovering rabid bats so close to each other within a week may just be a coincidence. But he said people need to be aware of the bats.

"The main reason people need to be concerned about the bats is that they need to know so they don't expose themselves to them," he said. "People with cats, dogs and small children need to realize that there is a threat."

Nelson stressed vaccinations should be kept current on pets in case the animal does encounter a bat.

"If you find one on the ground, you should isolate it with a bucket or something," Nelson said. "That way if a child, cat or dog finds it, they won't play with it or eat it."

The first rabid bat was found in rural area between Murphysboro and Carbondale and the second was found at University Park housing complex Monday by SIUC students. The bat, which was found in a student's dorm room on the fourth floor of Boomer 2, was captured and taken back to the police department where it was turned over to animal control.

Tests were performed Tuesday by state public health workers and it was determined the bat was rabid.

"The students of the room went to their RA and reported having a bat in their room."

— Steve Kirk

Steve Kirk of University Housing explained the event.

"The students of the room went to their RA and reported having a bat in their room," Kirk said.

Rabies are mostly found in foxes, bats, and skunks. Anyone who finds an animal they believe to be rabid should contact the local police department or Jackson County Animal Control. Anyone encountering a rabid animal should not come in contact with, or attempt, to capture the animal themselves.

Symptoms of rabies include daylight activity by nocturnal animals, disorientation while walking or flying, and bats infected with rabies may flop on the ground or cling to the sides of buildings.

The Carbondale Animal Control office can be reached at 457-3200 and Jackson County animal control may be contacted at 687-7235.

Morales agreed that Hofeld also supports truth-in-sentencing.

Ryan also said domestic violence perpetrators should be tried and imprisoned to the fullest extent for their crime. He said there has been a heightened awareness to an old problem because of the O. J. Simpson case, but domestic violence is the leading violent crime against women.

"Domestic violence is a threat to the health of Illinois women," he said. "That's why I have called for an Adopt-a-Shelter program for victims—it's a way for the private sector to get involved and help victims."

College plans food day

By Diane Dove
Staff Reporter

While past observances of World Food Day at SIUC have looked at issues such as world hunger, this year's events will focus on one of the most essential contributors to the world food supply — water.

"Sharing Water: Farms, Cities and Ecosystems," is the title of a conference planned for the 11th Annual World Food Day, Oct. 14.

Roger J. Beck, associate professor of agribusiness economics, said the topic is a new twist on the world hunger issue.

"It's looking at the resource base in a different way," he said.

Gil Kroening, director of the College of Agriculture, is recruiting the participation of students and faculty in organizing the conference.

Although the time and place for the conference has not yet been decided on, Kroening sent memos to faculty members in the college asking them to involve their students in the activity and to help with planning.

Kroening said the topic is timely because there is no alternative source for water.

"You can substitute other energy sources for oil (such as) coal, nuclear or solar energy, but there's not really anything you can substitute for water," he said. "So people think this demand for water will be an even bigger crisis than the oil crisis is or has been in the past as competition becomes acute."

Professor Oval Myers, Jr., of the department of plant and soil science, said the decreasing water supply is an issue all over the world.

"It's important not only in this country, particularly out west, but it's increasingly important in developing countries," he said.

In addition to a shortage of water affecting activities such as bathing or swimming, Kroening said it would also affect the environment and production of the world food supply.

"This (water shortage) will put stress not only on various ecosystems, but also on water available for pleasure for cities, etc.," he said. "One of the key elements for the squeeze that's being brought on by producing food for the growing population is the necessity for fresh water to produce food."

Kroening said past conferences have drawn between 50 and 200 people, but he hopes this year's conference will be more successful in light of the topic.

Beck said the conference is part of a long term commitment the University has had with resource scarcity issues.

"I think the faculty and the administration have had a long history of being involved in economic and food problems," he said.

Anyone interested in helping to plan the conference should contact the office of International Agriculture at 536-7727.

Weekend Spotlight

Unique sounds come to town

By Dave Katzman
Staff Reporter

As the search continues for New Seattle, Chicago has put in its bid to become the next musical Mecca.

The Drovers, a part of Chicago's burgeoning music scene, brings its renowned live show to Carbondale Saturday night.

Although some consider the Drovers to have a Celtic sound due to their fiddles, their music is a conglomeration of influences ranging from Middle Eastern to Folk. The band's new release, Kill Mice Elf, has received good reviews throughout the country. Ranging from straight-ahead rockers to trance-like instrumentation, the Drovers have a sound which is garnering national interest.

In the 70s and 80s, Chicago was home to a number of successful bands. While the rest of the country donned their polyester and twirled beneath disco balls, REO Speedwagon, Styx and Survivor plugged in their guitars and shot up the charts.

But Chicago's bumper crop dried up in the mid-1980s and the nation turned its head to the Northwest.

However, Chicago recently has

Champaign rockers Suede Chain will open for the Drovers Saturday night at Hangar 9.

Suede Chain smooths way for Drovers

By Paul Eisenberg
Entertainment Editor

A well known Champaign-based band which also plays regularly in St. Louis will visit Carbondale this weekend with the Drovers as part of a tour of the Midwest.

The Suede Chain will open the show for the Drovers at Hangar 9 on Saturday.

Suede Chain lead guitarist Brian Krumm said the last time the band was in Carbondale was three years ago when they played Hangar 9.

They were also booked for a party.

"We were supposed to be the only band there," Krumm said. "When we arrived, there were six or seven bands who had just showed up. By the time we got to play, we were pretty loopy, and we lost our bass player."

He said the band played without the bass player, who had been watching the show from a treetop.

"That's the result of loopyness, I guess," he said.

At that time the band was only a four-piece outfit, Krumm said. But since then, the band has added a cellist and a violin player.

Since the string additions, the band has been involved in multimedia presentations, including one which combined the band's performance and a stage play.

"Now we're just trying to write good music," he said. "We're rediscovering how much we enjoy just playing music."

The band has a wealth of original music to draw upon; as exhibited by the lack of cover songs in their repertoire.

"The only covers we may play are some things by Neil Diamond," he said.

While that may sound disheartening, Diamond was not listed among the band's influences, which range from college rock musicians like Camper Van Beethoven to world beat and classical music.

"The music doesn't sound like our influences," Krumm said.

"Someone recently told me at a show that we sound like Kansas and Smashing Pumpkins taking a hit off of the same crack pipe."

Arena fall schedule filled by country acts

By Aleksandra Macys
Senior Reporter

Reba McEntire will play at the Arena Oct. 1 at 8 p.m.

John Michael Montgomery will play Oct. 1 with McEntire.

Tanya Tucker will play at the Arena Oct. 29 at 8 p.m.

Those who do not listen to country music regularly may not recognize the performers who are scheduled to appear at the SIUC Arena this semester, but officials say other bands may still be booked.

Colin Murdoch, a senior in philosophy from Aurora, said he did not mind that all country bands were booked but thought the bands should be geared toward students' interests.

"The selection of artists should relate to the majority of student's interests," Murdoch said.

Michelle Suarez, deputy director of the Arena in charge of advertising, promotion and feedback from area media on bookings, said that the bands scheduled to appear were booked first, but other bands, like Aerosmith, may still be booked if it works into their touring schedule.

"As a general response, we are at all times working to get all types of music," Suarez said. She said when looking at finances, many bands will not play at the Arena because of its size. Billy Joel and Elton John, for example, will not play the Arena because it is too small.

Some bands, she said, ask for a money guarantee, which at times can be outrageous. These bands are not booked at the Arena because ticket prices would have to be high in order to pay the performers.

The deals various bands are looking for decide who will be booked at the Arena, she said.

Suarez said Arena officials do not book bands based on what they enjoy.

"We cannot book what we like, but what sells tickets," she said.

Sarah Schmitt, a junior in dental hygiene from Trenton, said she would like to see more of a variety of entertainment.

"I don't want to see country bands, but not necessarily rock bands either," Schmitt said.

Entertainment Briefs

● Where's Marty: The Marty Stewart/Tammy Wynette/Sammy Kershaw concert scheduled for Sept. 8 has been bumped up to Nov. 17, minus Stewart. Stewart will appear in Padukah on Sept. 17. Tickets for the the Sept. 8 concert will be honored for the Nov. 17 date.

● That's the ticket: Tickets are currently on sale for the entire Shryock Celebrity Series, which includes everything from cajun music to giant Japanese Taiko drums. For a complete listing and prices, call Shryock Auditorium at 453-2787.

Brown faces decision on census

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON—Three years ago, Ronald H. Brown, then chair of the Democratic National Committee, blasted the Bush administration for a critical decision over population counts.

The point of contention was which set of population figures to use in congressional reapportionment and federal funding allocations: the original results of the 1990 census head count; or a second set of population figures that had been statistically weighted to compensate for the 4 million Americans known to have been missed—or undercounted—in the census.

If the argument involved mind-numbing statistical complexities, it also carried crystal-clear political ramifications: The states and cities with lower population counts would lose out on representation in Congress and federal funding. Then-Commerce Secretary Robert A. Mosbacher chose to use the original Census figures.

Brown responded in a statement that "After being presented with undisputable evidence of an overwhelmingly high undercount, Secretary Mosbacher's decision not to adjust can only be a political, partisan and Republican-party serving one."

Now, Brown is commerce secretary and, because of a federal appeals court ruling earlier this month, he must make roughly the same choice that faced Mosbacher in 1991. The Clinton administration within the coming weeks must decide whether to defend Mosbacher's decision in an ongoing lawsuit or agree to settle with New York City, Washington and two dozen other communities and groups that had fought for use of the "adjusted" numbers.

That pending choice places Brown and the Clinton administration in a politically difficult position, sure to prompt criticism from communities and states that lose out as a result of the decision.

"It's very touchy," said Dick Munson, director of the Northeast-Midwest Coalition, made up of federal lawmakers from states in the region. "There's going to be opposition no matter which way they go on this because it involves political power and money."

DROVERS, from page 8

seen a new renaissance with the success of acts including the Smashing Pumpkins and Urge Overkill. Basking in the glow of the hype are the Drovers, who have been around for five years. Appearances in the movies Backdraft and Sliver have brought them into the national eye and the major labels have been knocking on their door ever since.

David Callahan, bassist of the Drovers, says the band is not thrilled by the major-label interest. The Drovers decided to stick with their own Tantrum Records to release Kill Mice Elf.

"We like putting out our own records," Callahan said. "Major labels can help you and they can not help you. Some bands are hurt by being on major labels."

While the Smashing Pumpkins adorn their walls with platinum records, the Drovers are content with the anonymity of the underground scene.

"We believe in the independent record world and the best music can be found on the independent labels," Callahan said.

Although the Drovers remain firm in their refusal of a record contract, they plan to play the College Music Journal music seminar later this year in New York City. CMJ, the industry publication for college music, sponsors the seminar annually.

As with all large music seminars, CMJ will be swarming with talent scouts.

But Callahan insists their participation is only to get more people to hear them.

"Your survival in this business depends on getting noticed," he said.

Carbondale definitely noticed the Drovers when they packed the Hangar in April. People came for the band they had heard so much about but had never seen.

Callahan has positive feelings about Carbondale. "I like the audience," he said. "They seem to be really nice people for the most part."

The Suede Chain will warm up the crowd for the Drovers Saturday night at 10:00. Hangar 9 is located at 511 S. Illinois in Carbondale.

"To be totally honest, we did not know what we had because we hadn't worked with them," he said. "We just tried to fill a broad-based across-the-border means of recruiting."

His first move was to find linemen, but even when they began looking, many players were already taken.

He said he would have liked to have gathered more players for the defensive line, but new players like Larry Watkins, Jonathan Tallman, David Reid, Nate Orsburn and Carlos Piner will be bankable prospects for the future.

"Carlos Piner has great feet for a good kid, we just have to get his weight down and his endurance up," he said. "Guys like Lawrence Watkins came in a little heavy, but his weight is down and he's really coming around. He could really grow into a first class player."

"It's been an ongoing battle, but we've got a good class, a real good class," he said. "We just have to develop them now."

David Jacobs, a recruit from Pasadena, Ca, said just practicing with the other players and coaches has given him a positive outlook for the season.

"Everyone has a great winning attitude," he said. "Everyone on the team gets along pretty well, we're building each other up. Everyone's pulling together."

None of the recruits were chosen from former coach Bob Smith, Watson said.

All of the new players signed came from prior knowledge; and linebacker Tony Homan and runningback Brian Samuels were recruited when Watson was at Miami of Ohio.

Watson said he makes sure the upper classmen make the new players feel like they belong on the team and at SIUC.

"We talk to the upper classman and hold them accountable, show them (the new players) the ropes, teaching them how we do business here, being a good example, and the kids do a real good job of that," he said.

Jacobs said there is a sense of brotherhood amongst the players on the team.

"We pull for each other and go hard at practice," he said. "It's like being a family."

Blue-chips build Saluki foundation

Due to a production error in the Fall Sports Special, the Daily Egyptian is re-running "Boundaries unlimited for Watson's blue-chips."

By Jeremy Finley
Special Projects Editor

SIUC football coach Shawn Watson was not going to let time or geography hinder his recruiting program, and went the distance for talent.

The players for the 1994 recruiting class are bringing their new blood and enthusiasm from all over the nation, coming from everywhere from Mt. Laurel, New Jersey to Pasadena, Ca.

Watson said even when he was coaching at Miami he was scouting out players, but when his official hire came in January, the usual year time of searching for recruits was cut in half.

"We didn't really even get to start recruiting because right after I got hired because it was a dead period, so we weren't really even starting to recruit till Jan. 20," he said. "We continued to recruit all the way up through summer."

Watson's first move was to hire a staff, with only the current running back coach D.J. Wardynski on his team — as new players were being recruited, so was a coaching staff.

"It was just a whirlwind, and we've never got off it," he said.

Watson said when he was looking at possible new players, he was not sure exactly what holes needed to be filled in the team.

Saluki football kicks off Watson era

By Grant Deady
Sports Editor

Countdown to Saluki Fall Sports Kickoff:

This is it. The action begins Saturday.

The wait is finally over. Saluki football will make its long anticipated debut on Saturday under first-year head coach Shawn Watson when Tennessee-Martin visits McAndrew Stadium.

"We're ready to play somebody besides ourselves," Watson said after the conclusion of preseason practice. "I like our progress and I'm excited about opening up Saturday. It'll be our first true test."

Twenty-four letterman return from last year's 2-9 squad for SIUC, but many of them will be experiencing their first shot at a major role on the team.

Watson said the Tennessee-Martin game will serve as a hands-on evaluation before Gateway Conference play begins on Oct. 1.

"We need to see some of these young people in a game situation in order to be able to better evaluate them," he said. "We do have the kids to win with, however."

On the offensive side of the ball, Saluki quarterback David Pierson will be shouldering much of the offense production, along with rookie receivers Jermaine Gray and Reggie Fowler.

Tennessee-Martin does not field a defense with overwhelming size, which Watson said should help his offense adjust in its first appearance.

"We just have to be patient with our offense and work the clock to keep our defense off the field," he said. "Our quarterback has to take what the defense gives."

The UT-Martin offense likes to primarily stay on the ground with its multi-faceted option attack, but will throw out of the set once the defense settles in.

"They try and make your defense go vanilla and keep them on their heels," Watson said. "Linwood (SIUC defensive coordinator) has a lot of experience stopping the option and I feel good about what the defense is doing right now. It's just a matter of coming up and making the hit."

UT-Martin head coach Don McLeary said his Pacer team is ready for some fresh competition and playing SIUC is a great way to start.

"We are naturally looking forward to getting the season started and playing at Southern Illinois is a challenging way to begin the year," he said. "The players are enthusiastic about the season and starting on a good note."

Leading the charge for the Pacers will be All-Ohio Valley Conference free safety DeWayne Harper and middle linebacker Brian Spano. Offensively, quarterback Charles Gamble gets the call in the backfield along with running backs Randy Brown and Kevin Gillian.

After all the preseason hype and the "new beginning" theme that has been thrust upon the Saluki football program, Watson said a packed stadium would offer more enthusiasm to his players than any pregame speech.

"The people of Southern Illinois do care about football and so do the students," he said. "That (big crowd) would be a more inspirational pregame talk than I could ever give."

Kickoff is slated for 1:30.

The Saluki volleyball team bumps, sets and spikes its way into the Florida State Invitational in Tallahassee, Fla. tonight.

The Salukis will test their strengths in the season opener against first round opponent Florida State at 6 p.m.

Head coach Sonya Locke said she is looking for answers to pre-season questions in the three-team tournament, which also includes Big Ten powerhouse Iowa.

"This tournament will tell me how far we are from being a team that can win the Missouri Valley Conference," she said.

Florida State, who finished second in the Atlantic Coast Conference last year, returns with third team All-South pick Luiza Ramos, an outside hitter from Brazil who set a school record for kills per game (4.60) last year.

Locke said Florida State's big hitters and blockers will test the SIUC's smart-outback offense.

"The key to scoring against the big blocks of FSU will be our ability to hit around the blockers rather than through them," she said. "We are also going to 'out-quick' their hitters by taking a lot of the court away and just play smart volleyball."

SIUC moved 6-foot outside hitter Deb Heyne, a pre-season All-MVC pick, from middle hitter to left side hitter.

"Heyne's move to the left side opens the door for SIUC to have two middle hitters on the court at all times," Locke said. "A 6-foot hitter is rare in the MVC, and that should help against the big hitters."

Locke said some players will play more, but doesn't know who'll start.

"I don't like the term starters, because I expect to play everyone I can to win," she said. "Our depth is what is going to make us a good team, not who has the most starts."

After the game against the Seminoles tonight, the Salukis return to the court tomorrow at 9 a.m. to take on the Hawkeyes, who lead the all-time series against SIUC 4-2-1, in the second round. The third round pits SIUC against FSU at 7 p.m.
